These were set when the seed of the nursery was sown, four years ago, some of which are in fruit the present year. Your committee were so much gratified and instructed by the manner in which Mr. Saunderson manages his whole farm operations, that we have taken the liberty to subjoin the following statement of Mr. Saunderson in a private letter to the chairman. Though our place was not entered for a premium, yet, by your request, we forward you a statement of the manner in which we manage our farming operations. We improve 100 acres of land---40 in mowing and tillage, and 00 in pasture. To renovate and improve the pasturing, we have adopted a custom, which, if continued, will, we think, tend greatly to improve that part of the farm. This is to plow them once in five years, roll and harrow down as smooth as possible, then sow oats and clover, --harrow in well, then turn the cattle in as soon as the oats are up, so they can feed upon them. This process keeps the feed new and sweet. The sward that is turned under, will decompose and thus fertilize the clover. This will die the second or third year, and aid the natural grasses to come up and cover the land. To improve our mowing and tillage, we collect and deposit such materials as will absorb those liquids that contain food for plants, which, if not retained in this...
